Handwritten text in Arabic script, likely a manuscript page. The text is dense and appears to be a list or a detailed account, possibly related to the historical context of the region. The script is cursive and shows signs of age.

Handwritten text in Arabic script, likely a manuscript or document, showing several lines of text with some corrections or annotations.

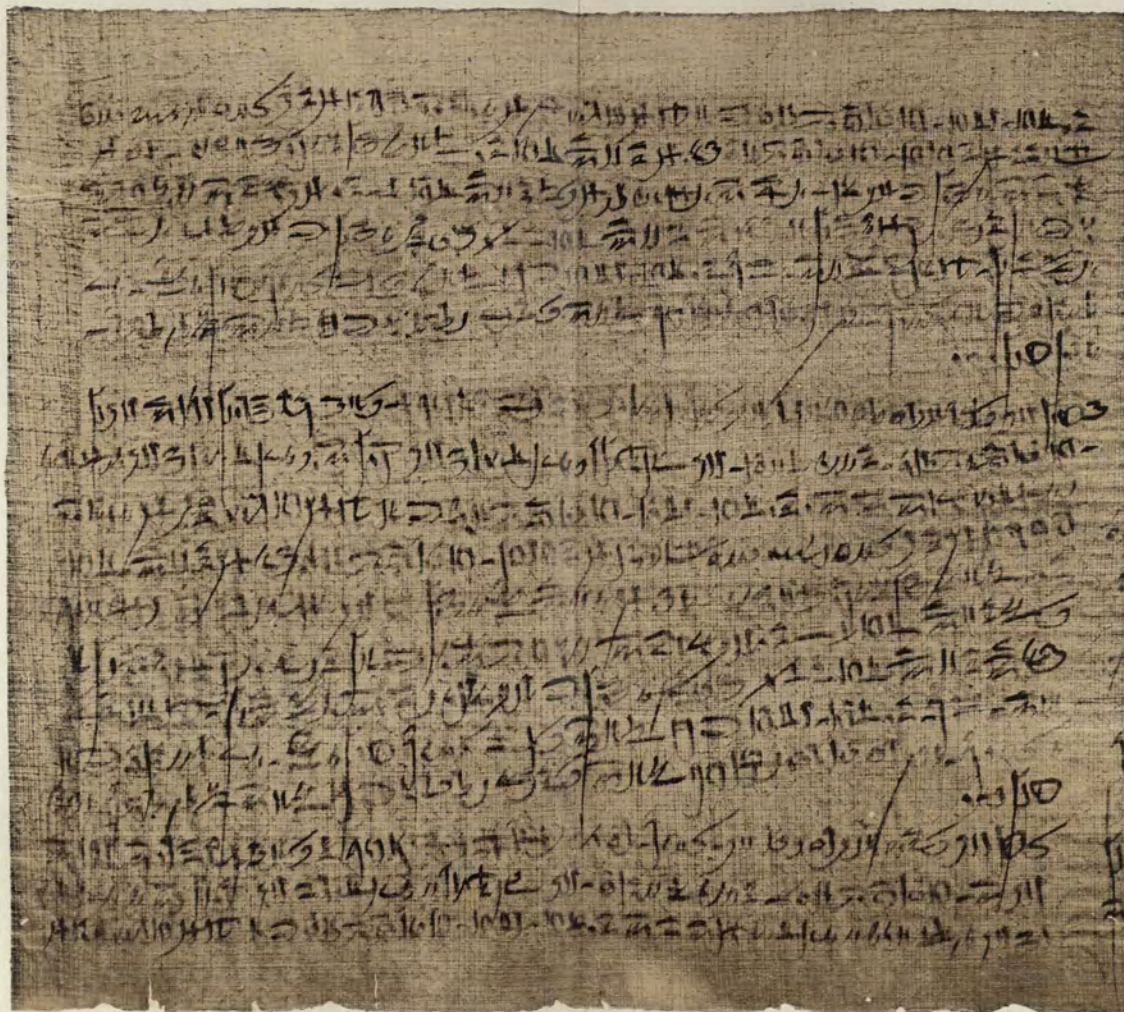

PAPYRUS No. I. O, P
(Sale of Priesthood, witness-copies)

Hieroglyphic text on a fragment of papyrus, likely a witness-copy of a sale of priesthood. The text is arranged in approximately 15 horizontal lines, with some characters written in a larger, more prominent script (possibly hieroglyphs) interspersed with smaller demotic script. The fragment is heavily damaged, with numerous holes and tears, particularly along the left edge and in the center.

Hieroglyphic text on a papyrus fragment, likely a grant of temple lodging. The text is arranged in several lines, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The fragment is damaged, with some characters missing or obscured.

The text is written in a cursive style, characteristic of Demotic script. It appears to be a legal document, possibly a grant of temple lodging, as indicated by the caption. The fragment is divided into two main sections by a vertical crease, with text on both sides.

The top section contains several lines of text, followed by a large, stylized character that may be a signature or a seal. The bottom section also contains several lines of text, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect.

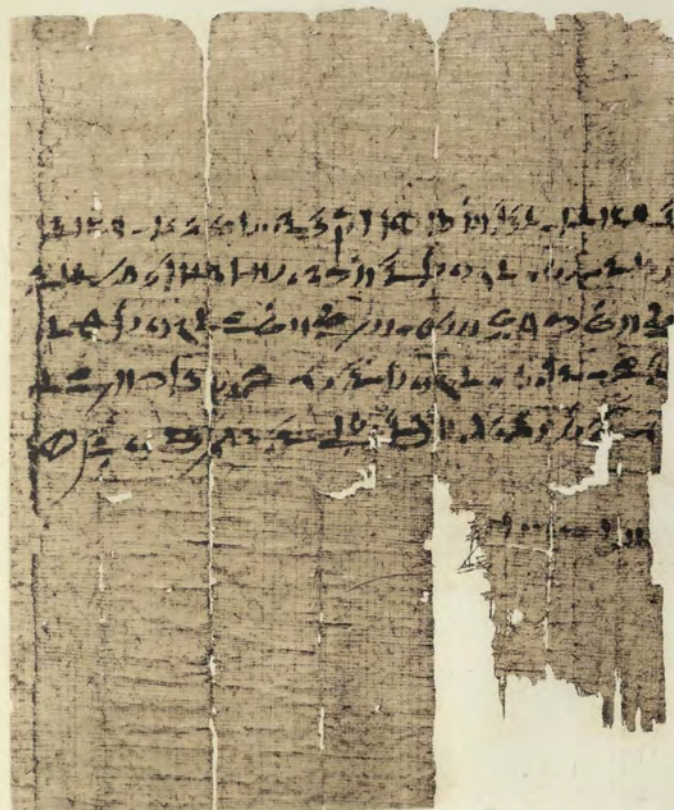

[The page contains two columns of handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Hebrew or Arabic, written on aged parchment. The ink is dark brown/black. There are some stains and wear visible on the paper.]

VIII

PAPYRUS NO. IX, column 1
(Petition of Ptolemaeus A)

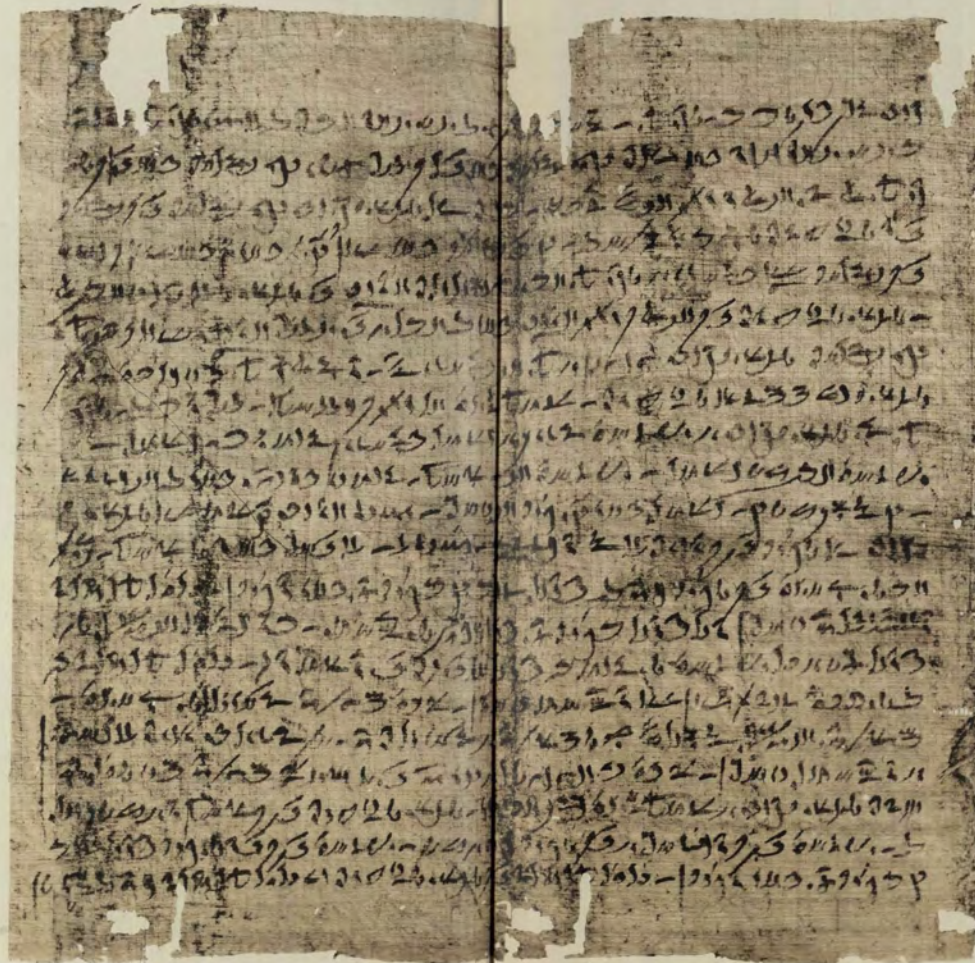

This plate shows a fragment of an ancient papyrus document, identified as Papyrus No. IX, column 2. The fragment is made of papyrus and contains two columns of text written in Demotic script. The script is a cursive form of Egyptian hieroglyphs, used during the reign of Darius I at El HÏbeh. The fragment is rectangular with irregular, torn edges. The text is arranged in two vertical columns. The left column contains approximately 18 lines of text, and the right column contains approximately 18 lines. The fragment is mounted on a light-colored, textured background.

The fragment contains two columns of demotic script. The left column begins with a large, stylized character that appears to be a variant of the hieroglyph for 'Darius'. The text continues in a dense, cursive hand. The right column also begins with a large character, possibly another variant of 'Darius' or a similar royal name. The script is consistent throughout, with some variations in the size and shape of the characters, likely due to the nature of the papyrus and the haste of the scribe. The fragment is well-preserved, though the edges are frayed and there are some small holes and tears in the material.

PAPYRUS NO. 10, column 4
(Petition of Pehesi. A)

PAPYRUS IX, column 9

(Petition of Peteési. B. Peteési (about year 15 of Psammetichus I))

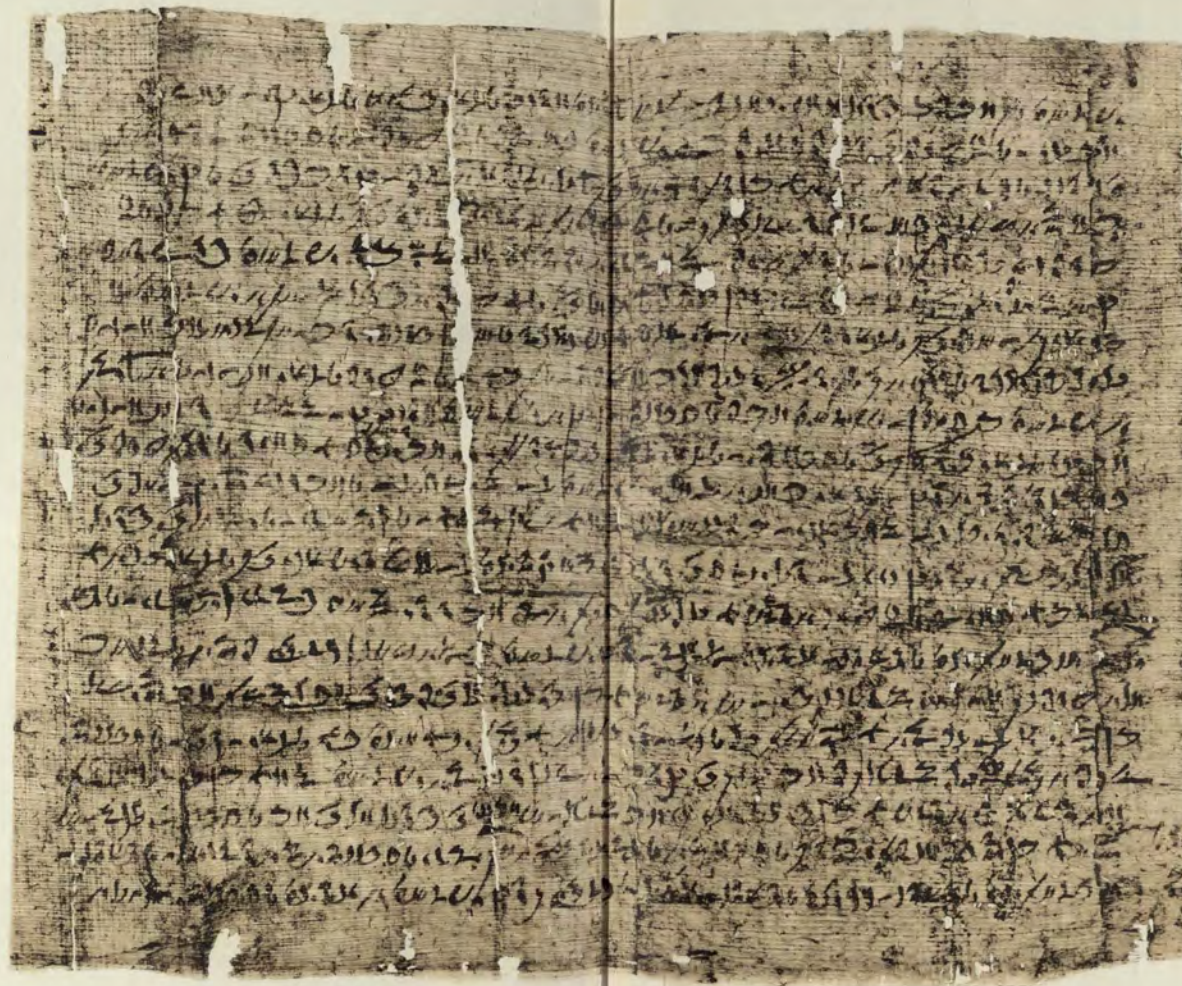

PAPYRUS NOX, column 10

(Petition of Petesi. B, Petesi, years 18, 19 of Psammetichus I)

PAPYRUS NO. IX, column 11

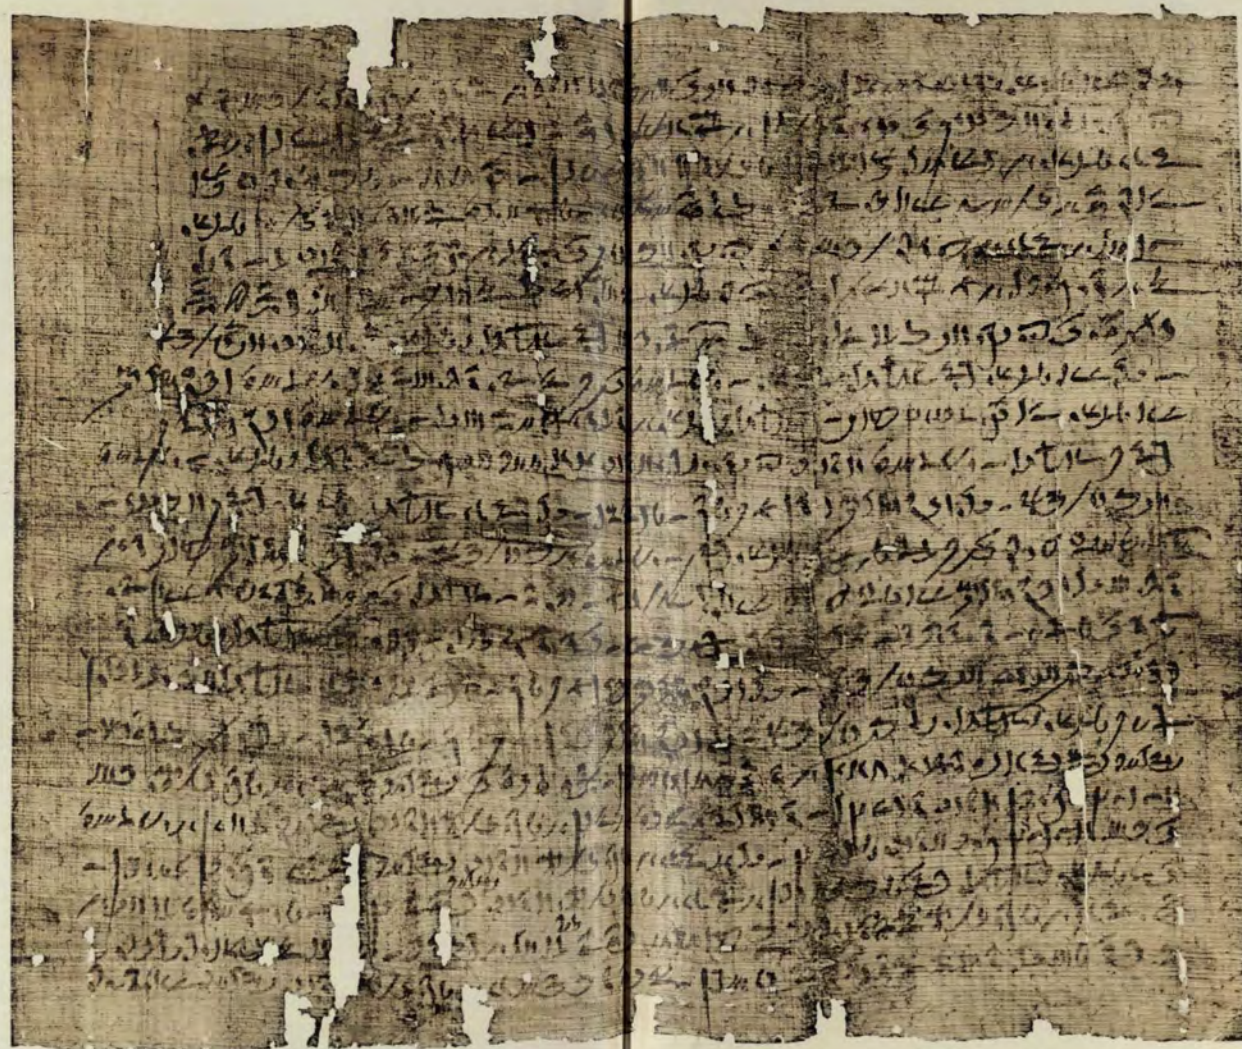

(Petition of Peteési. B, Peteési (15 year 31 of Psammetichus I))

PAPYRUS NO. IX, column 12

(Petition of Peteësi. B, Peteësi (I), after year 31 of Psammetichus I.)

The image shows a fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll, likely from the El Hibeh collection. It contains two columns of text written in Demotic script, a cursive form of Egyptian hieroglyphs. The text is densely packed and appears to be a petition or a legal document, as indicated by the caption. The papyrus is aged and shows signs of wear, with some areas of discoloration and damage to the surface.

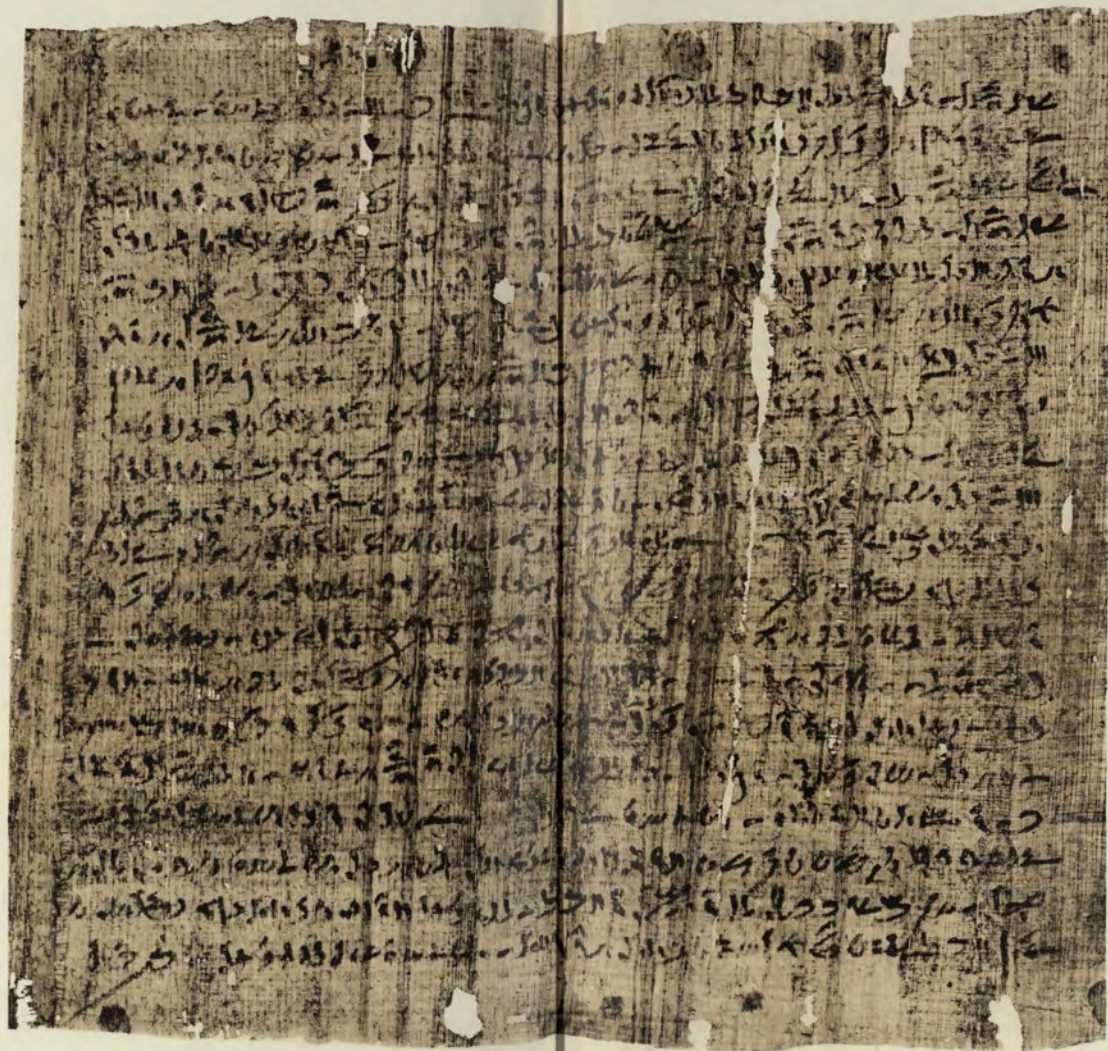

PAPYRUS NO. 1, column 14

(Petition of Peteësi. B. Peteësi (I), Esamteu (I), Peteësi (II), to year 4 of Psammētichus II)

Hieroglyphic text on the left column, followed by Demotic script. The text is arranged in approximately 20 horizontal lines. The script is a mix of hieroglyphs and Demotic characters, typical of the period. The right column contains a continuation of the text, also in Demotic script, with some visible damage and missing sections.

PAPYRUS NO. IX, verso, column 17

(Petition of Petési. B, [Essemté II], from year 15 of Amasis II)

The image shows a fragment of an ancient papyrus document, likely from the El HibeH region during the reign of Darius I. The fragment is rectangular and contains two columns of text written in Demotic script. The script is dense and appears to be a form of petition or official record. The papyrus material is aged and shows signs of wear, including tears and missing sections. The fragment is mounted on a light-colored background.

[Faint handwritten text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.]

Hier ist ein großer Teil des Papyrus, der in dem Jahr 100 v. Chr. geschrieben wurde. Der Text ist in demotischer Schrift verfasst und enthält eine Reihe von Zeilen, die in Gruppen von drei bis vier Zeilen angeordnet sind. Die Schrift ist sehr klein und dicht gedrängt. Die Zeilen sind durch horizontale Linien getrennt.

The image shows a fragment of a papyrus scroll with Demotic script. The text is arranged in several columns, with some lines being more prominent than others. The script is a cursive form of ancient Egyptian, used during the Ptolemaic period. The fragment appears to be a marriage contract, as indicated by the caption. The text is written on a piece of papyrus that has been partially damaged or torn, leaving gaps in the script. The ink is dark, and the papyrus has a light, aged appearance.

PAPYRUS No. XXXVIII
(Marriage Contract)

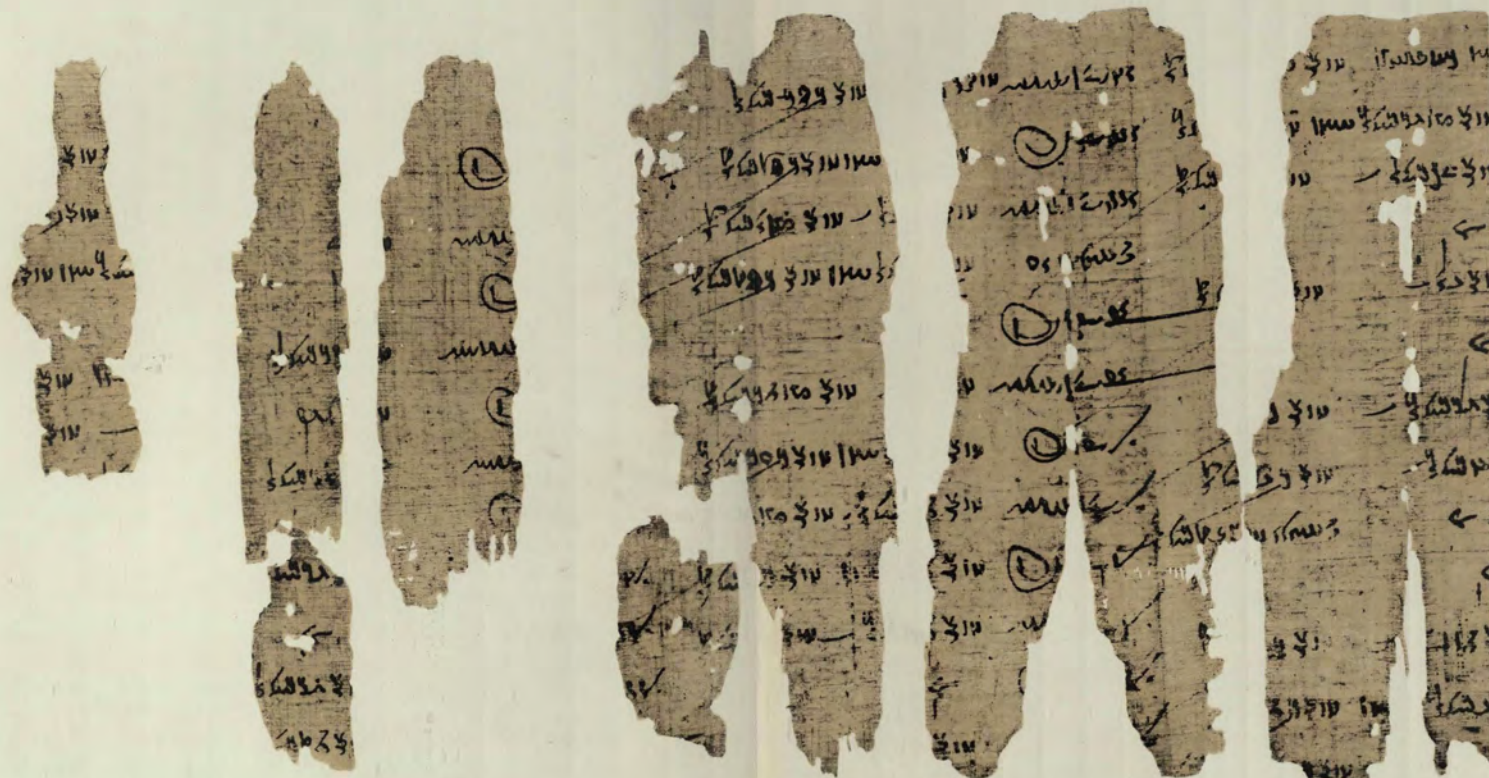

Papyrus No. XXXIX consists of fragments only

The image shows a single page from an old, damaged manuscript. The paper is brown, stained, and has several large tears and holes. The text is written in a cursive script, likely from the 16th or 17th century. It is organized into several columns, with some text written in the margins. The handwriting is somewhat difficult to decipher due to the damage and the style of the script. There are many abbreviations and symbols used throughout the text. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but heavily worn historical document.

The image shows a fragment of a papyrus scroll with two columns of text in Demotic script. The text is written in a cursive style, typical of ancient Egyptian demotic. The fragment is irregularly shaped, with some parts missing or torn. The text is arranged in two columns, with the left column being slightly longer than the right. The script is dense and difficult to read without specialized knowledge of the language.

The image shows a fragment of a papyrus document, likely a contract or legal record, written in Demotic script. The text is arranged in several columns, with some lines being more prominent than others. The script is highly stylized and characteristic of the Late Period of ancient Egypt. The fragment is damaged, with significant portions missing, particularly in the center and right-hand side. The text appears to be a legal document, possibly a contract of sale or a record of a transaction, as suggested by the caption below.
